NANA MOUSKOURI WITH HARRY BELAFONTE AT GREEK THEATRE
NANA MOUSKOURI, "The Girl From Greece," will meet the Southland for the first time when she appears nightly with Harry Belafonte at the Greek Theatre beginning tomorrow in her "home away from home." The Belafonte Show, an entirely new production featuring his famous troupe of singers and performers, will run through Saturday, Sept. 3. There will be no Sunday performances.

Athens once again has made a contribution to western culture: Nana Mouskouri was born in that city. Nana studied at the Conservatoire Hellenique in Athens, and while she was still in school, she heard an American radio program featuring jazz and blues, and thus discovered another world of music. She continued her classical studies, but used every spare moment to rehearse popular music with any available jazz ensemble. In 1958, at the age of 21, some young entertainers were summoned to prepare a show for the U. S. 6th Fleet. Nana Mouskouri was one of those entertainers. In that now historic performance, Nana was discovered in her first public appearance. She later appeared on Radio Athens and then met composer Manos Hadjidakis of "Never On Sunday" fame, who was so taken with her voice that he composed several songs especially for her. Together, their efforts have won many prizes and scores of honors.

linguist, is noted for her ability to sing in Greek, French, German, Spanish and English without ever experiencing an awkward moment. In singing she becomes a native of the country in whose language she chooses to tell a particular musical story. The American Ballet Theatre follows the Belafonte Show on Sept. 6 and will run through Sept. 11. Following will be Judy Garland in a Special Return Engagement which will run Sept. 13 through 18.
